INCONSIDERATE MOTORISTS ARE DRIVING ME MAD!

Pensioner says that drivers seeking to avoid hospital parking fees are a nuisance and a danger

By Danielle Thompson

A PENSIONER says that motorists seeking to avoid hospital car–parking fees are making his life and the lives of his neighbours a misery – and could be a danger.

Former merchant seaman Harry Pennington, who lives in Taylor Avenue, Ormskirk, claims that it and the surrounding streets, including Thompson Avenue and Latham Avenue, are swamped every day by visitors to the nearby hospital.

And the 65–year–old, who has lived there for 60 years, says that the constant sounds of car doors slamming are shattering his dreams of a quiet retirement.

The pensioner, who served in the Merchant Navy for 38 years, says that when he remonstrates with motorists they claim to be unaware that they shouldn't park on the road but even when he asks them to leave, they refuse because they don't want to pay to park.

He said: "They are making life hell for me and my neighbours, many of whom are elderly.

"Carers and nurses who need to attend to residents can't park anywhere and it causes delays. I'm concerned about what will happens if someone needs urgent care.

"I'm also worried for when it's the school summer holidays and there will be kids playing outside.

"Since parking fees started at the hospital in 2007 patients have been parking on the estate next to the hospital causing congestion.

"Lots of the families that live here have more than one car and there's barely enough space for residents to park without counting hospital visitors.

"Yellow lines have also been put around the estate that say no parking is allowed between 9am and 5pm but this just meant patients have parked on the opposite side during these times and it made the situation worse, the residents now have even less space.

"The council introduced a controlled parking zone in March but it hasn't worked. We need it to be a residential parking scheme."

And he added: "The council have been out last week to move the signs closer to the junction but I still don't believe it is enough. It needs to be made into a residents–only zone.

"People don't know what the sign means and ignore it. On the day that the the signs were moved I went and sat at the junction and monitored non–residents parking here and in two hours I counted 45 cars.

"The council clearly still hope the controlled parking zone will work but I don't think it will."

Mike Warren, from Lancashire County Council, said: "In the Thompson Avenue area we are introducing prohibition of driving except for access, which is what the signs are for.

"We are looking at solutions to improve the problem although as only 15 percent of residents do not have off–road parking, they do not qualify for a residential parking scheme so the council has looked for other solutions.

"Prohibition of driving except for access will be enforceable by local police when the legal orders come into force."

Call for vigilance after 11–year–old targeted by driver

. . . but police seek to reassure public

Report by Henry James

POLICE are advising parents and carers to be vigilant after an 11–year–old boy was approached by a man who tried to coax him into a car.

But they are also seeking to reassure the public following unsubstantiated reports on social media sites of alleged smilar incidents in West Lancs.

The recorded incident occurred at about 8.30am on Wednesday, May 8 when a man in a dark–blue car approached the boy on the corner of Hesketh Lane and Latham Crescent, Tarleton and asked him to get inside.

Since then, police have received further reports of suspicious behaviour involving motorists in the Tarleton, Hesketh Bank and Burscough areas.

However, these have been fully investigated and discovered to give no grounds for concern and found not to be connected with the original incident.

Area inspector for West Lancs, Christina Shorrock said: "We are aware of a number of rumours circulating on social media sites and understand the public are going to be alarmed and concerned by these reports.

"But, while we are encouraging parents, schools and the community to be vigilant, we would like to reassure people that incidents of this nature are rare and that at this time only one suspicious incident has taken place.

"I must stress that we take all reports made to us extremely seriously and have officers following up every allegation that is made to us.

"However, in order for us to be able to put the most resources into investigating and getting to the bottom of allegations, it is really important that people report first–hand instances of suspicious behaviour and to try and avoid repeating gossip and third–hand information.

"If anybody does see anything suspicious we would urge them to try and take in a description of the person involved or make a note of the registration plate and if at all possible take a picture of the vehicle or person.

"Neighbourhood policing officers will continue to maintain strong links with schools to discuss any developments and when necessary further information will be released via the appropriate channels. People need to be wary of misinformation which is often provided by channels other than the schools or police.

"Parents are advised to discuss any concerns they or their children have with the school and take sensible precautions in relation to ensuring the safety of their children travelling to and from school."

Taekwondo 'UK centre of excellence' plan for Ashurst Meeting Room

Report by Henry James

ASHURST Meeting Room in Skelmersdale could become a Taekwondo national centre of excellence after the borough council named a local martial arts group as the likely candidate to take over the facility.

Skelmersdale Taekwondo Academy has been named by West Lancashire Borough Council as the preferred partner to take on the future management of the venue on Lyndhurst.

The Academy was founded by Nigel Hudson and has been in operation in Skelmersdale for more than 25 years using various facilities, including Ashurst Meeting Room.

It currently uses Pennylands Meeting Room, which it acquired from the council in 2002, as a dedicated training centre.

Mr Hudson is also founder and chairperson of the Taekwondo Development Council, a national body with more than 80 clubs within the UK and recognised by UK Sport and Sport England.

It is hoped the meeting rooms will become a National Centre of Excellence for Taekwondo instructor training, grading and accreditation.

Councillor Ian Grant, leader of the borough council, said: "The proposal from Skelmersdale Taekwondo Academy to turn the building into a national centre of excellence sounds very exciting and the council is looking forward to working with the organisation."

The transfer of Ashurst Meeting Room to a community organisation was agreed by council in October 2012 and council staff interviewed four candidates to find the preferred partner for the facility.

The Skelmersdale Taekwondo Academy want to continue to use their base at the Pennylands Meeting Room and the building is also offered for use by other community groups.

The proposal is to continue to use the building in its current format encouraging community use by working in partnership with the taekwondo centre at Pennylands and the Taekwondo Development Council.

The council intends to transfer the full management of the Ashurst Meeting Room to the Skelmersdale Taekwondo Academy under a long term lease agreement.

Chris shapes up for body–building success

MOTOR technician Chris Gorman certainly knows a thing or two about fine–tuning and he's no mug when it comes to bodywork either – especially his own!

For when he's not sharpening up hs skills in his 'day job' with 06 Vauxhall in Skelmersdale, the 32–year–old is busy honing his physique as an amateur bodybulder.

Chris, who has had to endure gruelling gym sessions and a special diet, represented Lancashire in the National Amateur Body–Building Assocation (NABBA) championships at the Southport Theatre and Convention Centre.

And – despite organisers playing the wrong song during his individual performance! – the fitness fanatic crowned a strenuous day of competition by finishing a highly creditable sixth position in only his fourth championship event.

Chris Gorman Code NA

Chris, who has dedicated more than 15 years of intense commitment to the demanding sport, commented: "I've been a bodybuilder for many years but it's a daily challenge to maintain a good physique. After working out six days a week and twice a day during the lead–up to the competition I'm delighted with the result of this year's championship. The hard work has paid off."

John Dickson, managing director at 06 Vauxhall, added: "Chris has been putting himself through a very rigorous training programme over the past few months – we don't know how he does it! He's a great asset to the team here at the dealership and we're all very proud of him for securing a cracking result!"

Chris has been working at 06 Vauxhall for more than two–and–a–half years, and in between working and socialising, still finds time to train up to 20 hours a week, as well as sticking to a strict diet of fish, chicken, rice, pasta and potatoes.

20,000 missed appointments in our hospitals

...and it's costing local NHS more than £2m in lost income

by Ollie Cowan

SOUTHPORT and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust is urging patients to let staff know if they are unable to attend an outpatient clinic after 20,000 appointments were missed in the past year.

In the last twelve months the Trust has missed out on more than £2 million worth of income because patients failed to attend appointments and did not inform the hospital beforehand.

To raise awareness of the impact of missed appointments, leaflets are being sent out with appointment letters highlighting the average cost of an outpatient appointment (£123) even if the patient does not attend.

Sir Ron Watson, Chairman at Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust, said: "We know there are many reasons why people cannot attend appointments.

"All we ask is that patients let us know if they are unable to attend their appointment and I hope these leaflets will act as a reminder. Another appointment can then be scheduled for a more appropriate date and time.

"We have a service for our patients that allows them to receive a text message reminder for their appointments. I hope this service will help go some way towards cutting down on the number of missed appointments at the Trust."

If you are unable to attend your appointment please let the trust know by phoning 01695 656680 or email soh–tr.appointments@nhs.net

Fly–past marks Burscough station's key role in Battle of Atlantic

The fly–past on Sunday. Code NA

Royal Navy officers take the salute at last Saturday s Remembrance Ceremony at Burscough s HMS Ringtail memorial. Code1059152

By Danielle Thompson

A FLY–PAST of aircraft, including Second World War torpedo bomber Swordfish bombers and helicopters, took place at the weekend over the former HMS Ringtail naval station near Burscough to commemorate the 70th Anniversary of the Battle of the Atlantic.

A ceremony was held at the royal naval air station monument at Pippin Street involving naval personnel, including high–ranking officers, along with local dignitaries, veterans and members of the public before the aircraft passed over on their way to remembrance services in Liverpool.

Lawrence Critchley, honorary member of the Fleet Air Arm Association, said: "The ceremony at the monument was very special and afterwards a reception was held at the Bull and Dog Inn, which was popular during HMS Ringtail's operational years."

Grand boost for charity's sporting aims

By Danielle Thompson

A CHARITY which gives young adults with learning disabilities the opportunity to improve their sporting prowess has been given £1,000 towards activities.

Sporting Challenge in West Lancashire was set up by concerned parents of young adults with a learning disability and it aims are to give them the opportunity to try different sports and improve their health.

They also arrange for session workers to help them with the activities and transportation.

Community Foundation for Lancashire awarded them the funds, which they plan to use for swimming, ten–pin bowling sessions and boccia and curling sessions.

Their website describes why they began the charity: "Many people with a learning disability don't take part in any exercise activity because the family carers who support them are not motivated or are unable to do so because of their age and they find it a struggle to go by themselves.

"There has also been concern locally about the health of people with a learning disability and it is recognised that these people need to exercise more.

"Objectives are to provide or assist in the provision of opportunities and facilities in the interest of individuals who need of such facilities by reason of their youth, age, infirmity or disability, financial hardship or social circumstances, in particular people with learning difficulties with the object of improving their conditions of life."

Sporting Challenge is managed by a committee consisting of parents, people with a learning disability and volunteers.

Danny's riding high!

Report by Henry James

A LIFE–LONG lover of horses is riding high after gaining a place at a leading equestrian training provider.

Danny Francis from Skelmersdale is set to undertake a diploma in horse care at the prestigious Northern Racing College after completing a Prince's Trust course.

The 21–year–old, who had been unemployed for a year, completed the Prince's Trust programme at West Lancashire College in April and is due to start his diploma course at the Donacster college this month.

On the 12–week Prince's Trust programme Danny developed his CV, took part in trips and visits, and undertook a work placement.

He said: "I've always had an interest in horse riding and I've been volunteering at a horse riding stable for years.

"But before I never had the confidence to apply for a course like this as I thought I wouldn't get anywhere with it.

"I'm so glad that the tutors at West Lancs College encouraged me to apply for the course and I was over the moon when I was told I had got a place."

Danny continued: "The Prince's Trust course at West Lancs College has given me the confidence I needed to achieve my goals. The course has made me determined to do well at the training school.

"I'm now in the process of organising accommodation with the school. I never thought I'd move away from Skelmersdale and now I'm really excited about the new challenges ahead."

Danny Francis

Paula Higginson, Prince's Trust team leader at West Lancs College, said: "Danny has worked really hard to get this far and was a valuable team member when he was with us on the course.

"I am positive that he will do well and we wish him all the best for his course and future career in the equestrian field."

The Prince's Trust will help 55,000 disadvantaged young people this year, giving them the confidence and skills to turn their lives around. Three in four young people on Prince's Trust schemes move into work, education or training.

NHS Trust still on course for Foundation status

SOUTHPORT and Ormskirk NHS Trust are still on course to gain Foundation status, despite the process being put back a year.

Achieving Foundation status will allow people in the Trust to have a greater say on health care locally but recent major changes to the NHS system have caused all applications to be delayed.

Members are actively being sought to join the organisation once approved, which will allow better public feedback on business plans, consultations and discussions about services.

A spokesperson for Southport and Ormskirk Trust said: "Half of the trusts in the UK are still waiting for foundation status but with all the changes to the NHS over the last few years everything has slowed down a little.

"This year we would anticipate to know better as to when we will become a foundation trust.

"We are all ready and raring to go."

County cabinet position for Fillis

John Fillis Code NA

Report by Henry James

WEST Lancs borough councillor John Fillis has been given an as–yet unspeciified cabinet position with the newly–formed Labour administration on Lancashire County Council.

Despite failing to win an overall majority in the recently–held elections, Labour replaced the Conservatives as the leading party, with 39 of the 84 seats.

And this week they and the Liberal Democrats, who hold six seats, have reached an agreement that sees Labour form a minority administration with the support of the Lib Dems.

Councillor Fillis, who represents Skelmersdale, recently stepped down from leadership of the Labour group on West Lancs Borough Council following his election to the county council.

The full results of the county elections held on May 2 saw Labour win 39 seats, the Conservatives 35 and the Lib Dems six, with three independents and one Green Party representative completing the make–up of the new authority.

Under the agreement drawn up this week, the Liberal Democrats supported a proposal for Jennifer Mein, leader of the Labour group, to become leader of Lancashire County Council.

The proposal was passed at the annual meeting of the full council held last Friday (May 24) and County Councillor Mein was elected as new leader.

She then formed a minority administration with a cabinet made up of the following Labour councillors – David Borrow, deputy leader, Matthew Tomlinson, Azhar Ali, Tony Martin, Janice Hanson, John Fillis and Marcus Johnstone. Cabinet members' portfolio areas have yet to be allocated.

County Councillor Mein said: "We are delighted that we will now have the chance to deliver on our pledge for jobs, especially opportunities for young people and to help protect the most vulnerable in society.

"The reductions in central grant funding will make our task more difficult but we will ensure that we put the people of Lancashire at the heart of our plans for the future.

"We will work hard to serve the people of Lancashire and make it a county we can all be proud of."

County Councillor Bill Winlow, leader of the Liberal Democrat group, said: "I am very pleased with this agreement.

"It is very good for the people of Lancashire and will provide a green, fair and strong economy for our county. We are looking to protect front–line services at a time of major budget reductions. We will work hard to reduce duplication in service provision and to share services with other districts and counties."

Linnets and Squirrels to ground–share

Burscough FC offer neighbours a home for next two years

Report by Ollie Cowan

BURSCOUGH FC will from next season share their home ground of Victoria Park with Formby.

The Linnets and Squirrels will share the ground for two years as Formby look to find a permanent new home after leaving Altcar Road.

Debates over the Formby club's future arose earlier in the year when discussions took place about their lease at Altcar, a ground they have played at for 11 years.

"The move away from Altcar Road started in January. We requested a meeting with the League Management Committee at which they encouraged us to explore a ground–share option, which we began to do", said club secretary, Adrian Cork.

"The Linnets offer everything we need to continue. They couldn't have been more co–operative and supportive, making us feel more like partners than tenants.

"The facilities and support are an ideal platform for us to establish an improved club that will hopefully have a decent base of its own in the near future."

Demands

Formby FC's future was called into doubt after the North West Counties League threatened them with relegation from the First Division, despite them finishing top of the league.

Adrian continued: "The committee at Burscough FC were especially welcoming and the terms of the agreement offered a better chance of a secure future for Formby FC than trying to satisfy the league's demands.

"Because of this, and the swift resolution and certainty it provides, we decided not to continue with the grading appeal and instead to work with Burscough FC on making the ground–share a success for both clubs.

"This means that we will be playing in the North West Counties League First Division next season."

A spokesperson for the Squirrels told the Champion: "The club wishes to thank Burscough FC, in particular Martin Gilchrist and Dave Hughes, as well as Hugh McAuley, the Evo–Stik Northern Premier League and the North West Counties Football League for their assistance in arranging the ground–share.

"We also want to express gratitude to all who have helped during the 11 years at Altcar Road. The Squirrels' first game at Victoria Park will be a pre–season friendly against their landlords."

Bike thieves put a spoke in Ben's charity ride plan

Report by Henry James

• A STUDENT who was planning to take part in a charity bike ride in memory of a relative who died from a brain tumour has been left devastated after thieves stole his bike.

Ben Barnes had been due to line up with other riders in the Bucket & Spade Cycle 2013 in aid of Queenscourt Hospice on Saturday, June 15.

The event sees cyclists riding from Southort to fellow North West resort Blackpool to raise money for the hospice in Town Lane that provides support and care for people of Southport, Formby and West Lancs with serious illnesses.

The 21–year–old signed up to do the ride in memory of his uncle, Paul Thomson who died in March after battling against a brain tumour for two years and who had been supported through his illness by nurses at Queenscourt.

But his plans were thrown into chaos when his bike was stolen from his home in Cotton Drive, Ormskirk last Wednesday, May 22.

Ben's mum, Patricia Harris, told the Champion: "Ben wanted to do something in Paul's memory and was keen to take part in a Queenscourt event because the Queenscourt nurses had given a lot of support to Paul.

"He's devastated now though because he hasn't got a bike to do the ride. He is gutted that someone would do this. It was taken from a locked shed in a locked garden."

And this is the second time bike thieves have targeted the family. Two years ago they took two bikes.

Patricia added: "I just don't know what possesses people to do this. If they want a bike they should save up to buy one and not take other people's possessions."

Paul's twin brother, Kenneth, is travelling up from Suffolk to take part in the ride along with other family members and Patricia is hoping that someone will offer to lend Ben a bike so that he can take part as planned.

Patricia added: "Ben has just finished a course at Edge Hill and doesn't have a lot of money to buy another bike in time. If anyone would like to lend him one we'd all be very grateful."

• IF anyone can help Ben they are asked to ring 01695 578763.

MP calls for review of hospital parking

Report by Henry James

Increase in complaints by residents prompts plea

WEST Lancs MP Rosie Cooper is calling on Southport and Ormskirk NHS Hospital Trust to review its car park management arrangements after an increase of complaints from patients and their families.

In recent weeks, Ms Cooper has received numerous complaints from residents who have had problems with parking when attending hospital.

The MP has written to and met with the hospital chief executive to express her concerns and to call for the hospital's car parking management to be reviewed.

But health bosses have hit back to say that drivers may park free for 20 minutes in any of the hospital car parks.

Rosie Cooper said: "I am not condoning people parking incorrectly and using disabled bays without the appropriate blue badge.

"At the centre of these complaints is the size of the fine being issued; the time of day at which these tickets are being issued; and the time between people parking and when the ticket is issued.

"It has been suggested to me that the private company managing the car park could be targeting these motorists as the fines generate income for them.

"It needs to be appreciated that if people are ill or unsteady on their feet then you want to drop them off as close as possible to the front door and see them into the hospital before parking up properly.

"For some people they are faced with an emergency and how they park will not be a priority at all.

BALANCE

"I am hopeful that the hospital can strike a more sensible balance between properly managing the car park to avoid a free for all, but being more considerate of the public and patients using the car park."

Jonathan Parry, chief executive at Southport and Ormskirk Hospital Trust responded: "Parking enforcement was either non–existent or patchy until November when the Trust engaged UK Parking Control Ltd (UKPC) to prevent thoughtless and dangerous parking in our car parks 24 hours a day.

"The company issues penalty notices to drivers who park in Blue Badge spaces to which they are not entitled, park on pavements and double yellow lines, or block access to clinical and emergency services such as ambulances and fire engines.

"Drivers may park free for 20 minutes in any of our car parks and there are drop–off zones near hospital entrances with limited waiting.

"We continuously review and fine–tune parking management with UKPC in response to patient feedback.

"Appeals against penalty notices should be made to UKPC. The details are on the penalty notice.

"UKPC may consult the Trust for advice before deciding whether or not to uphold an appeal, for example, where there has been a medical emergency.

"The majority of penalty notices cancelled are issued to drivers who park in Blue Badge bays without displaying a badge but can later prove they own one.

"The Trust makes no money from penalty notice income which funds UKPC's management costs."

Writers' charity success story

A GROUP of keen wordsmiths have penned a success story – by raising £450 for two charities.

Members of the Tarleton Creative Writing Group (pictured) published booklets of stories, muses and poems, which were sold to fundraise for the Alzheimer's Society and Freshfields Animal Rescue Centre. The £2 booklet was sponsored by Harry Edmondson of Hesketh Bank and a limited number are still available to buy.

Threat to 25% council tax discount for single person households

Advisory group predicts outrage if plans become law

Report by Henry James

THE 25% council tax discount which is given to single person households could be under threat.

The Local Government Association (LGA), which is the national voice of local government, is seeking to abolish the discount.

According to the Daily Mail newspaper, more than seven million people are currently thought to receive the 25% discount.

Moves to axe it are likely to incur the anger of people living alone, who, typically, would see their council tax bill increase by an estimated £30 a month for a Band D property.

Communities secretary Eric Pickles has also branded it the 'Bridget Jones tax.'

Council Tax Advisors (CTA), a professional organisation dedicated to helping those owing arrears to the council, predicts public outrage if the proposals became law.

Chris Richards, managing director and founder of CTA, said: "Taking away the 25% council tax discount for single occupants will hit the most disadvantaged parts of Britain hardest.

"The cutback of funding in cash terms will be more drastic in areas where council tax benefit spending is higher."

When the Champion asked West Lancs Borough Council for a comment on the matter, a spokesman responded: "The 25% council tax discount given to single person households is set by the government. It is not at the discretion of West Lancashire Borough Council to alter it.

"The new benefits system came into operation on April 1. We are monitoring this area closely but it is too early to say what the impact is."

In neighbouring Sefton, the Champion asked Sefton Council for a comment on the matter, but they asked us to speak to the leader of the council, Councillor Peter Dowd. However, Cllr Dowd was unable to supply us with a comment as the Champion went to press.

Academic set to hit the airwaves

Report by Henry James

AN academic from Ormskirk has won a nationwide competition to find the brightest minds with the potential to turn their ideas into radio broadcasts.

Dr Sarah Peverley, a senior lecturer from the School of English at the University of Liverpool, is one of 10 people selected by the Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC) and BBC Radio 3 to be New Generation Thinkers 2013.

A medievalist and book historian, who specialises in the relationship between literature, history and political writing, Dr Peverley's current research focuses on texts and manuscripts produced during the Wars of the Roses.

Dr Sarah Peverley directed a medieval play, The Second Shepherds' Play, a comical version of the Nativity, last December at Ormskirk Parish Church to raise funds for the organ repair.

She said: "I'm thrilled to have been given this opportunity to share my work with a wider audience. The story of the Wars of the Roses is often told from the perspective of the medieval kings and nobles who played a real–life 'game of thrones' for the English crown.

"I want to look at the conflict's impact on literature and consider how men of lower rank responded to the political, economic and ideological crises that blighted 15th–century England.

"Many of the writers tackled emotive issues that still resonate with a 21st century audience, such as Anglo–Scottish relations, the legitimacy of those in power, and government finance.

"Their narratives often capture the emotions felt by ordinary people as they lived through protracted periods of instability and they offer unique insights into the cultural and intellectual shifts that brought about the end of the Middle Ages and the emergence of the Tudor state."

Dr Sarah Peverley Code NA

Sarah and the other nine winners will make their debut appearance on Radio 3's arts and ideas programme, Night Waves, on successive editions beginning Monday, June 3 and will be invited to make regular contributions to the network throughout the year.

The winners will each deliver talks at Radio 3's annual Free Thinking Festival of Ideas at the Sage, Gateshead in October 2013. The academics will also have an opportunity to develop their ideas for television, including working with BBC Television Arts to make short taster films to be shown on www.bbc.co.uk/arts

Inconsiderate car–parking as big a nuisance as dog–fouling

I'm sure the majority of your readers would agree that dog–owners who allow their dogs to foul the pavements, especially when there are numerous 'Dog Fouling £25 Penalty' signs about, are high on the list of anti–social offenders.

And I'm sure if it was happening regularly on the pavement in front of their house they would be up in arms and comment on it – and quite rightly so. That being the case, could any of your motorist readers explain to me their reasoning for ignoring the car–parking restriction signs and regularly parking on the pavements of residents living on Tower Hill estate, which is now a controlled parking zone, in order to keep appointments at Ormskirk Hospital?

We are not reponsible for the car parking fees or lack of parking space (contact Jonathan Parry, chief executive, Ormskirk and Southport Hospital) and I can assure you that to the residents on the estate your anti–social behaviour is no different – if not worse with the continual slamming of car doors – than that of the owners whose dogs leave the dog mess.

H Pennington, Ormskirk

Thanks, guys, for a very special day

I'd really like to thank the amazing guys who ran the heritage bus from Burscough Bridge inter–change last Saturday (May 18).

They were fantasic and so helpful and friendly and gave everyone a wonderful day.

I'd also like to thank all those who helped organise the day too.

My daughter and I had an absolutely wonderful day and it will be a treasured memory.

Thank you to you all for giving your time and effort to create such a special day.

Julie Haeger,
Up Holland

It's time for a council tax revaluation

WITH all the correspondence re:Edge Hill students living in houses in Ormskirk one matter that appears to have been overlooked is that they do not pay council tax.

To rectify this I would suggest that the government ought to change the rules and subject all residential properties to council tax and at the same time withdraw the discount for single households which would encourage more home owners to share thereby increasing the number of available properties.

What is needed is a revaluation of council tax with no upper limit. It is a national outrage that properties worth more than £100 million in the most expensive areas of London are only charged £1,200.

I am pleased to see that Edge Hill are building more student places on site, but they could build even more if the charged for car parking, thereby discouraging people from bringing their cars to the university, which would free up areas at present used for car parks. This would also benefit Ormskirk as there would be a reduction in road traffic.

Aughton

Paying respect

What happened to university's predicted economic benefits?

As the visibly grotesque expansion of Edge Hill University continues in front of our very eyes like some sort of time lapse explosion, more and more shops are lying empty as businesses desert Ormskirk town centre.

You really do have to wonder where the 'economic benefits' this expansion was going to bring – as promoted by Edge Hill's management, not to mention our MP and council – have disappeared to?

D Ashley, Ormskirk

Bedroom tax is problem but what's Labour's solution?

Councillor Furey is very active in promoting his campaign against the 'bedroom tax' but I have a couple of questions for him.

Firstly, can I assume that if a Labour government is elected in 2015 he has a gold–plated assurance they will abolish the 'bedroom tax'?

And, if so, how would they cover the extra cost to government finance?

Secondly, if there was a Labour council would they not levy the tax?

And, if so, how would they finance the gap?

Or, if they let people off, how would they fund the loss?

It's all very well to campaign but without clear pledges on these matters it really smells of Councillor Furey indulging in self–publicity and being less than honest in the process.

The 'bedroom tax' may be unfair but leading people on is just as bad.

Voting apathy is a good thing!

Steven Lowe's view (Letters, 15/5/13) that you shouldn't have a say in politics if you don't vote is undemocratic.

I believe I have the right to choose, so if I choose not to vote because I don't share the views of the parties up for election, it doesn't mean I can't criticise them or complain about things I perceive to be wrong with the country.

Many people don't vote because they're actually happy with their lives and don't take a great deal of interest in politics.

If they weren't, I'm sure they would look more closely at the main parties and vote accordingly.

This apathy should be seen as a good thing and not another thing to complain about.

Eric Parsonage, Ormskirk

Think I'll pass up on using buses!

I was interested to read your article stating states that local companies were offering incentives to encourage people to use the buses.

The other day I took my car in for service, so used the bus – usually the one time in the year when I do.

I presented my pass but was told it had expired. I had re–newed it but never received the new pass.

So I had to pay the fare, which was a problem as I only had a note, which the driver couldn't change.

He then had to go for change when we reached Ormskirk but refused to give it to me until we reached my stop.

Not a good impression. So, even if I receive my replacement pass I shall be reluctant to use it.

Still, I suppose it saves the council some money!

Solicitor's warning on wills

Report by Henry James

A LOCAL solicitor has accused the government of putting vulnerable people at risk of being exploited by unregulated will–writing companies.

Michael Prendergast, a partner at Dickinson Parker Hill in Derby Street, Ormskirk, says the decision by Justice Secretary, Chris Grayling not to regulate will–writing "flies in the face of reason and puts the most vulnerable at risk from unregulated firms."

Mr Prendergast spoke out after the minister rejected a recommendation made by the Legal Services Board to regulate the writing of wills. Instead, Mr Grayling is in favour of voluntary codes of conduct and more targeted guidance for those who prepare wills.

Michael Prendergast said: "The decision not to make will–writing a regulated activity is quite staggering, given the weight of evidence that was brought forward in support of regulation.

"As it stands now, people with no qualifications or legal training can operate as a will–writer and give the impression that they are legally qualified."

The decision has also been widely condemned by the Law Society, the Legal Services Board, the Legal Services Consumer Panel and the legal profession in general.

Michael Prendergast added: "This decision will leave the most vulnerable, including the elderly, at risk. Those considering making a will should check that the person they have instructed is qualified and has the requisite legal training to prepare a will."

Fears raised for future of justice system if changes to Legal Aid come into force

A LOCAL solicitor has spoken out against proposed Legal Aid changes warning that it could lead to innocent people being forced to plead guilty.

The government's consultation paper Transforming legal aid: delivering a more credible and efficient system, introduced by Justice minister Chris Grayling in April, proposes changes that will save the government about £220 million a year, on top of savings already made through changes effected on April 1st.

The proposals have galvanised the legal community in protest across the nation, with Nick Archer of Southport's legal team 'Archer, Halliwell, McCormack' going to London this week for a meeting with other lawyers to discuss what can be done.

The proposals include a draft of cost–cutting measures such as making convicted criminals pay for both their Legal Aid and court costs; set fees for cases whether a defendant pleads guilty or not; and limits to legal aid in civil cases where chances of success are better than 50%.

But the most controversial of the changes however is the introduction of competitive tendering, which former Lord Chief Justice Lord Woolf said to the Independent on Sunday newspaper "would lead to a 'factory of mass–produced justice' and miscarriages of justice." By it defendants will no longer be allowed to choose their solicitor and legal teams will compete by tendering a price for each case, a price which must be at least 17.5% less than what it is now.

However Nick Archer accuses the government of being dishonest in its figures: "He [Grayling] has quoted that the current Legal Aid bill as one billion and he wants to save £200 million out of that. What he has not said is that that one billion includes VAT, so he is getting his £200 million virtually straight back anyway."

Archer also says that the government is yet to quantify how much money has been saved by other changes that have already been introduced. The amount of money that clients can recoup from central funds if they win their cases has been reduced to the flat Legal Aid rate, whereas before it could be whatever 'private' rate they had paid out; as it was in the Steven Gerrard case, he said. Gerrard, who was cleared of a charge of affray in 2009, received £311,000 pounds from the public fund to reimburse his legal fees. Also, limited companies can no longer claim from those central funds.

But about competitive tendering he said the: "Our concern is about how innocent people will end up being convicted because unscrupulous firms that will come into this system, seeing that they get paid the same for a guilty plea or a not–guilty plea, will be pressuring clients to plead guilty as fast as they can even though they might have a perfectly acceptable and perfectly proper defence to an allegation.

"A trial might take a morning or it might take a whole day. But you can easily get five guilty pleas in a morning for example, which is five times the amount you get paid."

He mentioned that companies that presently have no experience of offering legal services have already expressed an interest in joining criminal Legal Aid, such as Stobarts, the trucking company."

He said, "A lot of people when they hear about this will say, well, it only affects people who've done bad things; but of course it doesn't. We represent lots of people who, through no fault of their own, find themselves in the criminal justice system.

"A simple example: you're driving down Lord Street and someone walks off the pavement without looking, you've not had time to stop and you knock them over. You're suddenly being investigated for causing death by dangerous driving.

"It isn't just people who've chosen to do bad things that are represented in the criminal justice system but everybody is at risk of being involved in it.

"We think whether they are private or Legal Aid funded, people are entitled to a robust defence."

Mayor signs off from civic duties with trip back to school

OUTGOING Mayor of West Lancashire, Councillor Paul Greenall paid a visit to Lathom High School as one of the final official duties of his year in office and took part in a number of activities.

On arrival, the civic guest was greeted by the school's student PR team before going on to be guest speaker at a Year 7 assembly where he addressed students about aspiring and achieving to do their very best, as well as telling them about his duties as mayor.

The outgoing Mayor of West Lancs, Councillor Paul Greenall is pictured with Lathom pupils near the revamped subway Code NA

Memento

After enjoying lunch in the dining hall, served by some of the students, Cllr Greenall visited the subway area next to the school, which has recently been revamped as part of an Urban Art Project involving students from Lathom.

At the end of the visit the PR team presented him with a piece of student artwork as a memento of the occasion.

A reciprocal visit will now be arranged in the near future as Cllr Greenall invited some of Lathom's students to attend the mayoral chambers.

Debbie Stock, Lathom's community officer, said: "The PR Team were fantastic and need to be congratulated on their excellent behaviour. Once again our young people were great ambassadors for Lathom."

Academy and firm team up to boost students' work skills

WEST Lancashire Construction Academy has entered into partnership with a manufacturer of kitchen and joinery products to offer students a chance to improve their skills and get a 'feel' for work.

The partnership will see students on joinery courses at West Lancashire College building new work tops and kitchen structures with materials supplied by Howden's Joinery.

Barry O'Grady, head of New Business Development at Howden's Ormskirk said: "The Construction Academy is a great environment for the learners. The set–up is similar to a construction site so they're using the realistic working environment to improve their skills."

Jeff Hilton, joinery lecturer at West Lancashire Construction Academy, said: "We're thankful to Howden's for everything that they've done for the academy and our students. Our students go into a range of jobs within the construction industry and building these relationships with employers helps the student's progression into their chosen careers."

Barry continued: "It's great to build links in the local community where we can. It's not easy to be a young person starting off in this trade so it's great to help them along where we can."

Eric Naylor, joinery lecturer at West Lancashire College, said: "It's a great opportunity for the learners to work with quality materials and the partnership helps us to keep up–to–date with an ever–changing industry."

Level 3 Joinery student Jack Webster, 19, from Skelmersdale said: "It's been great to work with the materials and the next intake of students will really benefit from working with local companies to gain this experience."

SILESTONE by COSENTINO
caesarstone Quartz Surfaces

Two festivals made me less cynical about 'community spirit'

IN the past couple of weeks I've had a huge boost in my faith in 'community spirit'.

Now those are two words I have cynically disliked for years. Community spirit has seemed to me to be another way of saying that a small group of do–gooders doing what they consider to be 'good' for the rest of us.

Too often this really means a really quite small number of people becoming (usually) temporarily involved in doing something for or to some other small group of people who quite probably don't want it doing.

But over two recent weekends (or a bit longer on one case) I have seen for myself just what the community can do when it gets together to do something genuinely good, something people want – something people miss.

First I went along to the Lydiate Festival.

This was an event originally thought up by the local parish council chairman Dave Russell a few years ago – but from the first it was his hope that the whole caboodle should be taken over by 'ordinary' people from Lydiate, with no more than a little help with manpower from the council itself.

And boy, how it worked!

A committee formed largely of people from local schools, Scouts and Guides, organised what turned out to be a truly magical event thoroughly enjoyed by everyone who turned out for it.

And that was the point – they did. It was an afternoon to remember fondly – and though I didn't get to the evening band night I understand that this too was a howling success.

And then, if that were not enough to cheer my jaded spirits, Maghull staged its five–day 'Hornby Festival' – celebrating what would have been toy–maker Frank Hornby's 150th birthday.

This wonderful event was never even a vague plan from a local councillor. This extravaganza (it was billed as such and for once lived up to its billing) came from the Rector of the local parish church who found a Hornby railway in the loft when he was clearing his father's house.

He and a very small committee then set about planning and executing an ambitious programme of events all over the town, all with a them of Frank Hornby.

And there was something to please and interest everyone – from Olde Time Music Hall to a comedy night, from a flower display to a Victorian Fair.

Before it opened I had (and I expressed) severe doubts that something of this size and complexity could be pulled off. I feared it would be a gigantic flop.

And I was totally, absolutely wrong.

The thing was, yes the committee was small (though keen and dedicated) but their success wasn't only in organising the Festival, it was in somehow tapping into the latent skills and enthusiasm of so many other local groups and individuals who saw a chance to produce a truly memorable community event and grasped it with both hands.

I reckon I am a better person after going along to both these local celebrations. My cynical hat is still ready and available for use – but now I would defend to the last the notion that a community really can pull together for the benefit of everybody given the right person – or persons – to push the right button.

Sincere congratulations and thanks to all concerned.

Fair beats the gloom

Taking the strain – young competitors in the tug of war, one of the events not switched inside at Aughton Christ Church School Summer Fair. Code NA

ORGANISERS of the Aughton Christ Church School annual Summer Fair refused to let the soggy weather dampen their spirits and ensured the event went ahead as planned – by switching it indoors.

With heavy rain forecast for the day of the fair (Saturday, May 18) a last–minute decision was made to change the venue from the school grounds to the drier indoor option of the church's Ministry Centre.

And taking the theme of a 'Traditional Country Fayre' it proved a popular attraction with visitors enjoying a host of familiar favourites including tug of war, wellie–throwing, beat–the–goalie and a range of county dancing displays performed by the children. Pupils were then given the chance to take charge for a while as a few unsuspecting teachers took their places in the stocks to be given a real soaking.

One of the highlights of the afternoon was the Aughton bake–off as pupils and parents went head–to–head putting their baking skills to the test.

Chair of the Parent Helpers Association, Alison Woods said: "While it was a shame about the weather, it's safe to say everyone had a fantastic time. We spent months planning this event and it was good to see the support of parents and staff result in such a great turn–out."

Bra–vo! Katie's doing her bit for charity

By Danielle Thompson

THE owner of a lingerie shop in Ormskirk is doing her bit to help people in Africa – with more than a little help from her customers.

Pandora's Box, run by Katie Givens, offers a discount on new bras to customers who donate their old bras to be passed on to Third World countries via recycling organisation, BCR Textiles.

To date, the store has collected more than 1,000 bras for the charity.

A spokesman for BCR said: "Re–usable textiles are sorted and sent abroad where they can provide clothing for those who either do not have access to or are unable to afford new garments.

"Every year thousands of bras are disposed of and ultimately end up in landfill sites across the UK.

"In Africa there is a demand for affordable bras.

"BCR Bra Banks are a fun and innovative way of taking bras out of the waste stream while raising thousands of pounds for charitable organisations across the globe."

Katie said that she hoped that it would give women the chance to be generous while 'spring–cleaning' their lingerie.

She said: "We have collected between 1,200 and 1,300 used bras so far from our generous customers and it is something we encourage.

"In return we give our customers £1 per bra (washed and in good condition) up to a maximum of five, to use against the purchase of a new bra."

Minister backs gay marriage

Report by Danielle Thompson

. . . but says 'moral decisions' should not be enforced by law

AN Ormskirk church minister has said he doesn't think gay marriage is a bad thing but believes that 'moral decisions' should not be forced upon chuches by law.

Neil Rees of Cottage Lane Mission Evangelical Church spoke out following last week's House of Commons vote on the Marriage (Same Sex Couples) Bill which saw MPs voting 366 to 161 in favour.

He said: "A lot of fuss is being made over this and I know that Christians hold very different opinions. Personally I don't feel that gay marriage is a bad thing. Gay couples who are married could strengthen the institution of marriage with the focus on a faithful loving relationship with a commitment to marry only once and set up a permanent home together.

"Same–sex civil partnerships are already allowed so essentially it's a matter of what we think marriage means, rather than approval or disapproval of same–sex relationships.

"Fundamentally, marriage is a public commitment between one man and one woman carried out in a way that is recognised by society. In a religious context, this commitment is also made in the sight of God.

"The important element is the socially–approved commitment made to each other, not the label used for this. I realise that there are legal differences, but from an ethical standpoint marriage and civil partnerships amount to the same thing."

He believes that marriage is under more threat from other factors including casual relationships, extra–marital affairs and the damage to families from divorce and re–marriage. As Britain becomes more multi–cultural, he believes that our laws must reflect this.

He said: "Britain isn't the same today as it was 50 years ago. We are no longer a Christian country, we are a secular society and laws cannot be based only on one religious option. In the past Christianity could provide the basis for UK law, but that is no longer the case.

"Legislation establishes what is lawful and what is criminal, not what is ethically right. I believe that lying is wrong, but would not want legislation to punish liars.

"Ethical choices motivated by religious conviction should not be imposed on others. The separation of church and state is a reality and UK legislation must cater for all. As such, I support legislation such as this that ensures equality for people of any sexual orientation."

Mr Rees fears that the choice to marry couples could be taken out of the church's hands by the law and churches that choose not to marry couples could be accused of homophobia.

He said: "It is important that legislation respects the conviction of many Christians and protects the right of churches to not conduct gay marriages. The same would apply to other religions, such as Islam.

"There is a strong anti–Christian lobby in the UK at present and it would be easy to turn some Christians' resistance to gay marriage into an attack on the Church.

"The right of one sector of the population, gay couples wishing to marry, must be protected, but not at the expense of others – churches or other religious groups who do not wish to be forced to conduct same–sex marriages.

"To not want to marry gay couples has nothing to do with homophobia – it is a decision for each church to make in light of the convictions that they carry.

"The choice of who should or could marry gay couples should thus be left entirely down to different branches of Christianity – and within these, individual churches should be able to choose."

Meanwhile, West Lancs MP Rosie Cooper has spoken about why she opted to vote against legalising gay marriages.

She said: "In February when this Bill was first debated in the House of Commons I set out my reasons for voting against it. Namely, that a bill was not included in any party manifesto at the last election; and that I was not sufficiently reassured by the government's protections for religious institutions in the face of legal challenge, which was also reflected by the letters I received."

Council line up month of events offering public a chance to get close to nature

Report by Henry James

A NUMBER of days out have been lined up in June by West Lancs Council to help people enjoy the borough's parks and countryside.

The events will take place throughout the month and will also give people the chance to get close to nature.

Councillor David Sudworth, portfolio holder for leisure, said: "We are now into summer and I hope we get some good weather, so people can really enjoy these wonderful events."

Nature–lovers can find out all about the bats that live in Coronation Park in Ormskirk at the Bat Walk and Talk on Saturday, June 1, starting at 8.30pm.

Bat detectors will be used to listen to the animals. Please bring a torch if you have one. People taking part should meet at the park's bowling pavilion.

Then on Saturday, June 2 the park will be transformed into a Wonderland for the Mad Hatter's Tea Party between midday and 4pm.

Performances from Edge of Your Seat Productions will bring characters from the classic children's story to life. There will be fun for all the family with interactive displays, performances and craft activities.

A special harvest takes place at Beacon Country Park in Up Holland with the Oak Peeling day on Saturday, June 8, which starts at 10am from the Ranger Station. Visitors can join in the harvest of this valuable and overlooked resource and discover more about its surprising range of traditional uses.

Balsam bashing will be the name of the game on Saturday, June 15. Himalayan Balsam is one of the most invasive species that is spreading through the British countryside and is choking out our native flora. The only way to stop it is to remove the plants before they have chance to seed.

Members of the public can help to tackle the problem with the Balsam Bashing event. People taking part should meet at the lay–by opposite Fairy Glen on the A5209, Appley Bridge at 10am. Please wear suitable footwear and clothing.

All children under 16 require adult supervision for these four events.

Finally, the Kite Flying Weekend at Beacon Country Park will take place on Saturday, June 22 and Sunday, June 23, between 11am and 5pm on both days. This is an opportunity to join the Northern Kite Group for a weekend of kite flying and displays.

Chance for kids to learn money skills

By Danielle Thompson

CHILDREN will have the chance to learn vital money skills next week as schools take part in My Money Week from Monday to Sunday, June 3 to 9.

Labour MP Rosie Cooper, has called on primary and secondary schools in West Lancashire to host special lessons, activities and debates about finance.

This will be the fifth year of the project between national charity Personal Finance Education Group and Barclays Bank.

Rosie Cooper MP said:"This is a fantastic initiative that all schools and young people should get involved in. The economy is the country's number one priority and our young people need to learn about money and personal finance. My Money Week provides access for young people from all backgrounds to the support they need to learn about money at a time when it couldn't be more important."

Tracey Bleakley, from Personal Finance Education Group, said: "We are absolutely delighted to have the support of Rosie Cooper MP in promoting My Money Week this year, and I hope all schools in West Lancashire will seize the opportunity to take part through our free activity pack, advice and support."

Appeal for info after car thieves strike

POLICE are appealing for information after three cars were stolen from a home in Aughton.

The thieves took three sets of keys from the hallway of Woodbine Cottage Kennels, which has a kennel business attached, on Butchers Lane after sneaking through an unsecured doorway sometime between 10.30pm on Thursday, May 16 and Friday, May 17.

On Tuesday, May 21, police found one of the stolen cars, a white Mini Cooper, burnt out in Kirkby.

The other two vehicles, a silver Toyota Land Cruiser and a silver Peugeot Expert HDI van with internal dog cages, are still missing.

DC Dominic Webster from Lancashire Constabulary said: "An investigation is underway into this burglary but I would appeal to anybody with any information that could assist with our investigation to get in touch.

"In particular I'd be interested to hear from anyone who may have been offered these vehicles for sale or who thinks they know of their whereabouts."

Anyone with information can contact the police on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Finale of musical is a truly grand spectacle

Review by Ron Ellis

- Carousel
- Birkdale Orpheus Society
- Southport Little Theatre

AFTER a week in which I have seen Priscilla Queen of the Desert and Showaddywaddy, watching Carousel was like stepping back in time. Only as long as there are people still around who remember The Light Programme, Issy Bonn and Austin Ten cars, will there be a market for these shows, which seem terribly dated now, and this was the demographic make–up of the audience for this latest production.

Despite the title and the opening sequence of a fairground, joy and gaiety are the last words you would think of to describe Carousel. It has none of the elegance of My Fair Lady, which has better songs, or the gaiety of The Boy Friend with its lively Twenties music.

After all, the lead character, Billy Bigelow, (played aggressively by the beefy Ben Wake) is an unpleasant wife–beater who stabs himself to death and ends up outside the Pearly Gates after a failed attempt at robbery with violence.

But let's look at the good points. Bridie Flanagan had a delightful singing voice and showed great humility as the winsome Julie (Billy's battered wife) while Heather Lewis was outstanding as the radiant, Carrie, who marries Mr Snow, played by West End Players protégé, Nick Lloyd, with whom she sang a delightful version of When the children are asleep.

When Billy reached the Pearly Gates, he was welcomed by a rather jaunty Heavenly Friend (David Davies) who allowed him to make himself known to Louise, the daughter he had never lived to see.

Louise was introduced as the solo dancer in the interminable Carousel Ballet which, in a later sequence, surprisingly featured a bunch of ladies seemingly dressed by Nice'n'Naughty.

There are three other memorable songs in Carousel. Lisa Tatler as Nettie, led Carrie and the cast in a vigorous rendition of June is bustin' out all over; You'll never walk alone was sung most movingly by Nettie to the widowed Julie and when Billy reprised their love song (If I loved you) to Julie at Louise's graduation, there was hardly a dry eye in the house. Shame he was already dead.

And this led to the finale, Louise's graduation, a truly grand spectacle with the full cast all decked out in white and Billy saying goodbye for the last time before his ascension (or descent).

MD Tom Chester's flamboyant conducting was a show in itself. Zoe Findley was choreographer and Liz Clark directed.

But, in the end, Carousel, along with shows like Brigadoon and The King and I, belongs to a different era. They are fondly remembered museum pieces, that everyone has seen, and now should be laid to rest as faded memories in sepia scrapbooks.

Star Rating 6 out of 10. Badly needs jazzing up for a new generation.

Group to come to resort in June

Report by Ollie Cowan

The Drifters

THE Drifters are back on tour in the UK for their 60th Anniversary and will be coming to Southport Theatre on June 14.

Now in their 60th year, The Drifters have seen massive chart success on both sides of the Atlantic and across the world, with over 114 million album sales and 214 million singles sales and a vast catalogue of hits including Under The Boardwalk, Like Sister and Brother, Saturday Night At The Movies, Save The Last Dance For Me, On Broadway and Kissin in The Back Row.

Billed as the Diamond Dynasty World Tour, the concert aims to be the best to date, and will celebrate the timeless appeal of the band's hits over the last 60 years.

The current recording line up of The Drifters will perform the group's greatest hits and new material recorded by them from album releases Five Decades and Moore (2009), and Up on the Roof (2011), the greatest hits album.

Current Drifters line up member, Pierre Herelle, said: "We are very proud to be fronting the 60th Anniversary of this great brand.

"The idea of the Diamond Dynasty tour is to honour all of the members before us that have made this brand the successful Dynasty it has become today.

"The concert features over 35 tracks and some very interesting new songs making it a very special occasion."

Show just as good second time around

- Dirty Dancing
- Manchester Palace Theatre
- Review by Henry James

LOVERS of the Dirty Dancing film will find all of their favourite scenes in the stage production.

It has returned to Manchester's Palace Theatre – following a successful run at the same venue at the end of 2011.

Paul–Michael Jones is Johnny Castle, the character made famous by Patrick Swayze in the film version. Paul, who played the same role here in 2011, has some impressive dances with Penny throughout the opening of the show.

Jill Winternitz stars as Baby and she brings humour to the part. Baby and Johnny share some good scenes together in Act One, especially when he teaches her how to dance. Baby's first steps on the dance floor are entertaining. I thought the part of the show where Johnny and Baby practice the lift in the lake was particularly well done.

Also appearing is James Coombes as Dr Jake Houseman, who was the Milk Tray man in the 1980s commercials.

Stand out scenes from Act Two were Lisa's (Baby's sister) Hula which had the audience in stitches and Johnny and Baby's last dance to (I've Had) the Time of My Life.

Some of the biggest cheers of the evening, from the predominantly female audience, came when Johnny returns to the resort and said the famous line, "nobody puts Baby in a corner."

The orchestra were on the stage on a raised platform, which was occasionally concealed. I thought the production was at its best when the orchestra could be seen.

This is not just a show about two people coming together against the odds but also a look at family life, class, supporting people in times of trouble and knowing the importance of right and wrong.

Dirty Dancing aims to give you the time of your life, and for many of the people at The Palace it did. 7/10

West End play to be screened to cinema

PETER Morgan's new play The Audience, with Helen Mirren as The Queen, is to be broadcast live from London's Gielgud Theatre in the West End to Southport's Vue Cinema.

Helen Mirren has received an Olivier Award for her performance as The Queen in the production directed by Stephen Daldry.

For 60 years The Queen has met each of her 12 Prime Ministers in a weekly audience at Buckingham Palace – a meeting like no other in British public life – it is private. Both parties have an unspoken agreement never to repeat what is said. Not even to their spouses.

The Audience breaks this contract of silence – and imagines a series of pivotal meetings between the Downing Street incumbents and their Queen. From Churchill to Cameron, each Prime Minister has used these private conversations as a sounding board and a confessional – sometimes intimate, sometimes explosive.

The production can be seen on Thursday, June 13.

DEMAND EXPECTED TO BE HIGH AT BURSCOUGH

Demand is expected to be high when an eagerly-awaited development of new homes is unveiled to the public this weekend in the popular village of Burscough.

The Carriages is Persimmon Homes' latest development in the region, providing three, four and five bedroom family homes on the historic site of the former Ainscough Mill.

Diane Finch, sales director for Persimmon Homes Lancashire, said: "The Carriages sales office opens this Saturday at 11am and we are expecting to be rushed off our feet with people coming to view the site and find out more about the beautiful homes we have planned. Already we have received hundreds of enquiries through our website, so we know there will be a lot of interest on the day.

"The village is in a superb location, at a crossroads between Preston, Liverpool, Southport and Wigan, making it convenient for commuters and also those who love the great outdoors, as it is just a few minutes from the Martin Mere nature reserve.

"Our site is also close to the Burscough Wharf leisure and retail centre, which showcases arts and crafts, fashion, food and drink, and includes beautiful walks along the canal."

The development, on Junction Lane, offers 66 family homes in a variety of styles, priced from £194,995.

Diane added: "We have a number of schemes to help people to secure the house of their dreams, including the Help To Buy shared equity scheme, NewBuy 95 per cent mortgages, part exchange if you already have a property to sell or we may be able to offer five per cent towards your deposit.

"Call in to see us at The Carriages from 11am on Saturday, or call 0844 375 7072 to find out more."

Just a quick note to say that I have been advertising my business with The Champion newspaper for four months now, and although the first month was slow as expected, thanks to the expertise of the team and their flexibility to tweak the ad as required. We now receive at least two to four leads each week.

I can tell from week to week what time and day the newspapers are delivered as my phone begins to ring.

Thank you to the team I now need to buy a new van and take on more staff due to the added business.

IN MEMORIAM

WILLIAMS
Daniel Carl

Sunset 28th May 2012
Aged 25

He went away without farewell, he said goodbye to none. But Heaven's gates were opened wide and a loving voice said 'Come'. Beside his grave we often stand, our hearts are tired and sore. But through the gloom we hear the words 'Not dead just gone before'.
The lights will guide you home.
Now and always

I don't like Mondays

...or Bank Holiday weekends!

Life on Cars by David Simister

SO another Bank Holiday weekend's been and gone. How was yours?

If you were sensible you probably spent it trying to shelter your pint from the searing heat of the sun in a beer garden of your choice, enjoying a round of a rather different sort at the Royal Birkdale or – if you were feeling adventurous – trying to avoid a DIY–induced trip to your nearest Accident & Emergency.

It's just a shame, then, that I loathe Bank Holidays with a venom usually only reserved for Bob Geldof, the music of Will.i.am and the Kia Pride.

Part of the problem is that – unlike days you've chosen to take out your holiday allowance, when the world truly is your oyster and you're free to make whatever carefully considered plans you like for it – Bank Holidays are essentially days when the Government tells you that you must have fun.

Whitehall telling you to enjoy yourself is like telling a six–year–old child to go to sleep – because of the imperatives involved, it ain't gonna happen.

But worse still is the unintended but inevitable byproduct of Britain's population being told, en masse, to have a good time; the slightly silly amounts of traffic on the major roads and motorways from clocking off work on Friday right through to the following Tuesday morning.

As much as I love cars and driving, even I was wishing someone would get on with inventing a successful teleportation as I sat in the same two mile stretch of M6 for the 45th minute last Friday night. If you can liken Britain's road network to a living, breathing thing, then the Bank Holiday weekend represents the clogged arteries that come after the nation collectively gorging itself on the double cheeseburger that is the working week.

I can see the retort coming already; perhaps, rather than being one of these people inconveniently helping cause a bit of congestion, I should have just avoided travelling?

David dislikes Bank Holidays as much as he dislikes Bob Geldof

I would have loved to have travelled at a different time but I could only leave work to get where I needed to be when – you guessed it – work finished. I'd only dared venture onto the M6, at rush hour on a Friday night on a Bank Holiday weekend, because it connects where I'd come from with where I wanted to go. Thanks to the brilliance of Bank Holiday weekends, that's the predicament everyone else was in too.

There was that idiotic suggestion by some Government think tank that Bank Holidays should be abolished altogether, but really what Whitehall ought to do, for the nation's collective commuting sanity, is find a way of managing the congestion nightmares they cause for thousands of people, none of whom especially want to be stuck there.

That or get busy giving a grant to whoever can invent a teleporter.

Skem batters blown away by pace attack

SKELMERSDALE CC can blow hot or cold, but in Saturday's warm sunshine, they blew distinctly cold being heavily defeated at Spring View.

Spring View batted first and reached 203 for 5 in the 40th over.

Skem persevered and took three more late wickets, when Spring View declared on 233 for 8 in the 45th over with Declan Mulvey (73) and Martyn Storey (60) the top scorers.

Jonas Smith took four wickets but otherwise the bowling was too inconsistent.

In reply, Skem were in trouble from the start, and were unsettled by the opening pace attack of Marc Birch and Chris Higham. Wickets fell at regular intervals, and when Skem were soon all out for 88. Peter Wylie was the top scorer for with just 16.

The undoubted star for Spring View was overseas player Umega Jasenthuliyana who bowled 11 overs, taking 7 wickets for 24 runs. Spring View batted better, fielded better, and bowled better and so deserved their win on the day.

Skem 2nd XI hosted Parkfield Liscard and scored a creditable 177 for 7 but the visitors reached tehtarget with five wickets down and three overs to spare. Skem will be regretting letting Parkfield off the hook when they were in a seemingly winning position.

Despite an innings of 65 from Andrew Griffiths, Skelmersdale 3rd XI lost a hard–fought and high–scoring game with Orrell Red Triangle. Skipper Mark Syers, whilst disappointed with the defeat, was full of praise for the juniors, notably Jack Maddocks who starred with bat and ball, and also Harry Marston and Andre Hughes who bowled well.

On Monday, the much–awaited local derby with Burscough was abandoned without a ball being bowled, as was the 2nd XI home game with Alder.

Caunce takes five to set up victory

But Burscough sink to bottom after draw

FOR the first time this season all our local clubs in the Liverpool & District Cricket Competition finally got a full game of cricket in on Saturday and Ormskirk took the opportunity to enjoy a six wicket win at Fleetwood Hesketh.

After electing to bat first the hosts slipped to 48–6 with Nicky Caunce (5–33) in outstanding form with the ball, before some rearguard action from Adnan Malik (23) and Paul Mullen (22) helped them to 120 all out.

In reply an unbeaten 49 from keeper Gary Knight and 27 from Andy Baybutt helped see the visitors to victory on 121–4.

Elsewhere in the Premier Division Maghull lost by 108 runs at current champions Lytham.

After electing to bat the hosts racked up 262–4 dec in 50 overs, thanks to Alex Davies (70), Dom O'Brien, Fayaz Ughradar (65) and an unbeaten 25 from Joe Davies with Muhammad Abid taking 3–64.

In reply a defiant 92 from former skipper Jon Ring and 25 from Donavan Pell were the only Maghull batting highlights in their 154 total, with Anthony Mulligan (3–24) and Ben Saunders (3–27) the pick of the bowlers.

In the Second Division Burscough are now bottom of the table after drawing at home to Wavertree.

After being put into bat the visitors eventually declared after 58 overs on 188–5 thanks to an unbeaten 116 from Ken Highdale with Chris Andrews taking 2–17. In reply the hosts struggled to 116–8 off 50 overs with Andrews (28) top scoring and Kamir Sohail taking 4–23.

This weekend Ormskirk visit Wallasey while Burscough host Spring View.
